

Artifact Bag Assignment

Due Friday!

An artifact is something made by humans and often is a primitive tool, structure, or part of a functional item. Artifacts left by groups of people teach us about how they lived. An example of an artifact would be a cooking pot found by archaeologists that Native Americans might have used hundreds of years ago.

What “artifacts” would you choose to tell people about you? Find 5 items that can be used to tell people your likes, interests and hobbies. For example, if you like to read, you would choose a book for one of your items. Place the 5 items that you choose in your brown paper bag. Your items need to fit inside the bag. Get creative! Don't use any pictures or items that have your name on it. Don't put your name on your bag. Don't bring any expensive or dangerous items. We will be using the bags for an activity on Friday. Don't share what's in the bag with anyone! 😊
